GARDEN OF SUM

MERRY DELIGHTS

There are three golden rules for making an impromptu garden get-together: 1) No fuss, 2) No fuss, and 3) Absolutely no fuss! Pick a few berries – enough for a table treat and maybe to add to some homemade lemonade. Whip some cream, and if you are feeling particularly energetic, bake some rolls. Throw over a tablecloth, grab some crockery and cutlery, and, well that's it! Just add your favourite company. Indeed, it's the informality and simplicity which makes these occasions so pleasurable.

And we think that the new Greengate garden collection helps this feeling along. Our inspiration came far from our garden – in fact it was while relaxing outside a simple and traditional French café that we mused – how can we replicate this atmosphere of simple, summery pleasure back home, and give it some of the Scandinavian, Greengate feel? We do hope you like the outcome!

Come holiday time, some people yearn for five-star hotels and being waited on hand and foot in exotic destinations. But if you are like us, nothing comes close to hitching up and scooting off to the nearby countryside. If you like, you can have a new view from your window every day – or, when you find the perfect spot, settle down and make a little home away from home.

There's something truly magical about making your own adventure, finding your own destination, and giving yourself your own award-winning service. Just settle back and contemplate all the airport terminals, the noisy neighbours and 'challenging' dishes you won't be dealing with this summer!

A still life composition featuring a vintage lantern, a floral mug, and a patterned bag with roses. The scene is set on a blue, distressed wooden surface. In the foreground, a white ceramic mug with a blue floral pattern and a white polka-dot band sits next to a vintage lantern with a blue and white patina. The lantern has a glass chimney and a metal handle. Behind the mug, a small sprig of green herbs and a white flower are visible. In the background, a large, light blue bag with a white floral pattern and a blue and white geometric pattern is draped over a green rose bush. The roses are in various stages of bloom, with some showing pink and orange hues. The overall mood is nostalgic and romantic.

A visit to G E L S K O V

In the south of the small Danish island of Funen can be found our summer destination and our hosts, Anette and Heine Dahl Bartsch. For those of us who have not been brought up in 17th Century manor houses, the first time arriving outside Gelskov Estate can be quite an arresting experience. Our first thoughts were “are we perhaps a little under-dressed for this?”

That all changes as soon as our hosts Anette and Heine come down the steps to greet us, Heine in khaki shorts and Anette in a casual summer dress. As soon as we enter the manor, we are each given a pair of slippers – not, you might think, because they are precious about their immaculate floors, but rather to make you feel right at home and comfortable the moment you step into their shared world.

And what a world! To stay at Gelskov Estate is to witness – and become part of – a life philosophy which is acted out in every pleasure, chore and deed they undertake, every moment, every day. Anette, a painter, and Heine an antiques importer, combine their symbiotic talents and personalities to create an experience which is all encompassing, and wholly life-affirming. Having fallen in love with Funen many years ago, the couple left their Copenhagen lakeside house for the privilege and responsibility of this magnificent 400 year-old manor. For them, it was the last, crucial element they needed to create the lifestyle they have been working for (and many would say born to do).

Urban dwellers may well find themselves waking early to the quite startling sound of total silence. If you are up early enough and have a rear facing room, you might catch a few whispers of Danish sweet nothings drifting through the courtyard, where Anette is walking her beautiful two horses, out towards the green meadow. Those on the front side of the house might see Heine driving to a neighbour farm (in a vintage tractor, naturally), to pick up some fresh eggs. Then on to the little harbour, where he can meet the boats on their way in and select the best produce for the day’s menu.

ESTATE

By the time Heine returns, it's hardly even breakfast time for most of us. But he is straight into the kitchen and ready to prepare, using ingredients which simply could not be any more fresh, or any more local.

Our breakfast is served in what used to be the old kitchen. The gigantic old stove conjures up images of how it must have looked hundreds of years ago with chefs, cooks and maids scurrying around preparing the banquet for the aristocracy upstairs. These days it is an infinitely more calm affair with Heine both cooking and serving with the minimum of fuss and with plenty of good humour and charm.

The decor is the perfect showcase for both Heine and Anette's talents. Some of the treats of Heine's many trips to France each year are visible. It becomes quickly apparent that his eye for matching diverse objects and his instinct for knowing what will work and the atmosphere it will provide is a product of painstaking trawling, years of experience, and raw instinct.

Everything comes together exquisitely, but in a warmly informal way – Napoleonic era plates are used to serve rustic, honest farmyard foods.

Walking out to the courtyard and entering one of the large stables one is greeted not by Anette's horses, but rather by countless antique treasures, which are bought by well informed people from all over Scandinavia. One could lose one's self for days in here, and though it might at first seem chaotic, one can quickly see the amount of thought – and taste – which has gone into selecting these objects. On market days, these and many more antiques are brought out into the courtyard, lending a relaxed, informal atmosphere to the whole occasion.

Watching how Heine and Anette spend their day, how they complement each other in every way, how the Estate itself is intertwined into their life and work, how we the visitors became a part of the process, was truly inspiring. We are sure that you will be equally inspired if you make Gelskov Estate your destination.

AT THE GELSKOV ESTATE

Our design team at Greengate believe that the new Dora collection is perhaps the most romantic range we have created to date. Though all of the unmistakable Greengate hallmarks are there – floral prints and decals, high craftsmanship and fine details – Dora's expression is something altogether more ethereal and delicate. While all of the products are designed for use in an everyday setting, we think this collection has an elegance which make it ideal for life's most special occasions.

Starting the day the Penelope way

Waking up to the sounds of the ocean's lazy lapping against the sandy shore can make one want to wait a while before throwing off the bedcovers and starting the day. But sooner or later the scent of salty sea leads to a wave of peckishness, and with it, the incentive to rise and shine.

It's not that the atmosphere has to change so much, however. The Penelope range stretches from the bedroom, all the way to the kitchen and outside. It's been designed to fit snugly with the Fay blue and white collection, so you can build on your own collection without a care in the world.

PERNILLA

It is one of life's sweet little mysteries that we can derive so much pleasure from something's appearance. Whether it is a scene in nature, a beautiful design, or simply the smile from a loved one, we can become happier just from observing and enjoying that which surrounds us. Maybe we connect with things that are made with love, and respond accordingly. Whatever the reason, it can mean that even the most unassuming moments and tasks can be enjoyable, memorable experiences.

CLASSIC FRYDENUND APPLE CAKE

Dough:

140g butter
70g sugar
1 egg white
215g flour
1 tablespoon baking powder
1/2 tablespoon vanilla sugar

Mix sugar and butter together until it has a white texture. Add the egg white.

Mix together flour, baking powder and vanilla sugar. Add the flour mixture to the dough.

Put the dough in a plastic bag and put it in the refrigerator for 30 mins.

Filling:

10-12 apples
60 g butter
2 table spoons sugar
2 tablespoons cinnamon powder
1 tablespoon cardamom

Pile and slice the apples, and fry them in butter and sugar together with the spices until they get soft and golden brown.

Sprinkle some flour on your counter top, then roll out the dough on it with a rolling pin until it is 1/2 cm thick. Save some of the dough for decoration on the top of the cake.

Coat the bottom of a pie dish with butter and put the dough in the pie dish and carefully push the dough out to the edges, cut off excessive dough.

Put the apple slices into the pie dish. Roll out the rest of the dough and cut them into long shreds, about 1 cm thick. Shape the shreds as a barred pattern on top of the pie dish.

Paint the top of the pie dish with whipped egg and sprinkle some sugar on top of it.

Turn on the oven to 175 degrees and put the pie dish in the oven. Bake for about 30-40 minutes until it is golden brown.

SHARING THE FRUITS

A ten-minute jaunt up the coast road from Greengate takes you to Frydenlund's Orchard. Something we all look forward to at the close of each summer.

Dating back to 1723, when King Frederik 4th built a pleasure palace there, the estate and its buildings have essentially remained the same since 1800. But fine and all as the buildings and the history are, these trips are all about the apples – the apples!

In bygone days, rural friends and neighbours would always be on hand to help each other out when it came to harvesting – a basic necessity to ensure every last fruit, grain or vegetable can be saved up for the colder months ahead. But it provided a very welcome side-effect. The sense of community and appreciation of those around you became so much more profound – and the desire to help one's neighbour become an instinctive part of life. And when it was all done, they would celebrate into the dawn, in appreciation of the shared achievement.

These days most of us don't have to worry about saving the harvest. But when we are at Frydenlund, we like to think of the simple act of helping each other pick their apples is a little symbolic nod to those times and simple values of sharing.
